

Chassis changes

If you have to re-impose your chassis number or if you have a new chassis number due to changes you will need to first visit a Salama centre and get a permission.

If you need a chassis change there are two options:

1. RE-EMBOSSING THE CHASSIS ONLY

If your chassis number has been damaged and you need re-imposing, you come to Salama and see a supervisor in order to get a permission.

- Drive to any Salama centre
- You will not need vehicle inspection, so don't position yourself in the queue; You also don't need to go inside and get a ticket from the counter
- Simply park your car and go to the supervisor's office
- Once the permission is granted, please proceed to the cashier to get your permission certificate; You will need to pay AED 40
- Please note that only dealers are authorised to re-impose chassis numbers

After the authorised dealer has re-embossed the chassis number, come back for Salama for a chassis test

- Bring with you a letter from dealer regarding chassis re-imposing
- Park your car and proceed to the counter to get a vehicle inspection ticket. Cost of inspection ticket is AED 120
- Place yourself in the queue and repeat the steps described in Inspection for renewing your car registration
- Once this is done, information regarding your chassis reposing will be stored in the system by supervisor.
- You will not need to re-issue your registration card or go to the police

If you do not wish to come back for a chassis test after the dealer has re-embossed your chassis number, you may choose to wait until your registration is due for renewal. When you do your annual vehicle inspection please make sure that you have the letter from the dealer with you and that you highlight to the technician that you've obtained permission first and that you have the letter. When your new registration card is issued, the chassis change will be reflected in the system.
